An Integrated Approach to Using Visuals in the Classroom

Outline

Presented by Deirdre Murphy, Sherilyn Sibanda, Patricia Slater and Carolyn Gelenter.

Description

This is a newly developed workshop that will bring a fresh look (excuse the pun) to understanding the theory and practice of a developmental and integrated approach to the use of visuals in the setting or classroom. As educators we all understand the importance of visuals. This course will ensure that you know which ones are appropriate, who they may be appropriate for, and how they can be applied to individuals, groups and classes in different contexts. Come and take an outside the box approach to using visuals in a way you may not have previously considered.

Outcome

Participants will have an understanding of the developmental approach to the use and range of visuals for supporting teaching and learning gain theoretical knowledge of how visuals support a range of learning, not just for those with additional needs gain some ideas for using visuals in a more integrated way have opportunities to create some practical ideas for taking back to the classroom or setting.
