SCERTS - Day One

Outline

An exciting opportunity to develop your knowledge and understanding of the 'SCERTS' approach - Social Communication, Emotional Regulation and Transactional Support. The SCERTS® Model is a research-based educational approach and multidisciplinary framework that directly addresses the core challenges faced by autistic CYP and their families.

Description

This virtual workshop will introduce SCERTS® (Social Communication, Emotional Regulation, Transactional Support), a comprehensive, multidisciplinary educational framework designed for learners with autism and social emotional learning differences. This workshop will begin with an introduction of the neurodevelopmental foundation of SCERTS, a discussion of the empirical evidence of the framework, and the core domains. Next, the content will shift to writing outcomes for learners who are not yet talking, at emerging language stages, and at conversational levels. This virtual format is interactive and participants will have the opportunity share ideas, ask questions, and learn from one another throughout the day.

During the course you will be introduced to the philosophy and practice of the SCERTS model. You will be able to explore the challenges in social communication and emotional regulation, faced by autistic children and young people. You will be able to explore the assessment process and consider programme planning and implementation, prioritising appropriate learning outcomes for autistic children and young people.

Outcome

By the end of the course you will be able to:

- describe the essential components of this educational programme
- describe the challenges of social communication and emotional regulation faced by autistic CYP
- prioritise learning objectives for autistic CYP

Audience

All school staff - nurseries, mainstream / Special schools; parents; NHS staff; therapists; education staff
